LUXURY: Paul and Stephen Sutherland with proud parents Brian and Marie and the Bentley Continental

Two Mossley men who made £107,543 in a day on the stock market decided to make their father's dream come true.

Paul Sutherland 31, and his business partner brother Stephen 34, made the astounding amount trading in stocks and shares - and as their father Brian had always dreamed of owning a Bentley they bought one for him.

Stephen said: "He is the greatest dad you could wish for and because he's helped and supported us all this time it was our way of showing our appreciation."

As a gift they bought him a Bentley Continental two door coupe. Brian and his wife Marie live at Daisy Nook, Ashton.

The brothers, who left St. Damien's School, Ashton with few qualifications went on to work for the family cleaning and maintenance business, earning only £47 in their first week's wage. However they have been living a success story for several years.

Since 2001 they have been steadily building up their business which has two functions.

Stephen is the stock market wizard who makes profits from investing activities and Paul looks after ISACO Ltd, teaching people the secrets of how to gain financial independence.

The company operates from their purpose built £300,000 luxury home in Chellow Court, Mossley. The brothers have also written a book about the fast track to financial independence in which they share ingredients to money making.
